We have learned that the only solution is love, and that love comes with community.

Dorothy Day
The Trinity Boston Foundation is committed to changing the odds for Boston youth.

The Trinity Boston Foundation turned five in 2011. In that time we have grown the two programs, TEEP and the Trinity Boston Counseling Center, which we inherited from our parent, Trinity Church. We have also added a new program, Sole Train: Boston Runs Together, and two advocacy initiatives, Bostonians for Youth and Trinity Public School Partners.

In all we do, our goal is to improve outcomes for Boston youth, from reducing violence and incarceration to increasing rates of high school graduation, college access and success.

We believe that the most effective strategy for achieving these goals is to strengthen the array of supports every youth needs to succeed. So we look for ways that our programs and initiatives can partner with and support parents, schools, community organizations and government agencies. And we engage the general public so that everyone can get involved.

Whereas some non-profit organizations hone a single program or intervention with the goal of replicating it in other cities, our strategy is to create stronger and denser networks of relationships and partnerships within Boston. No single organization can ensure that all our youth develop to their full potential. But together, we can change the odds.
Bostonians for Youth

Bostonians for Youth imagines a city with safe streets, excellent schools and strong families, a city where all children have the opportunity to reach their full potential. We believe that the only way to achieve this vision is if we as citizens and neighbors commit ourselves to each other’s welfare and if non-profits, government agencies, corporations and foundations work together for positive change.

The annual Bostonians for Youth dinner raises funds for multiple organizations working to achieve this goal, particularly in the areas of violence intervention and prevention. In the process, we build collaborative relationships with our partners and look for ways that we can work together.

In 2011, Trinity Boston Foundation joined forces with Justice Resource Institute (JRI) and the Louis D. Brown Peace Institute. In 2012, we partnered with Justice Resource Institute and with the Youth Violence Prevention Funder Learning Collaborative. Net proceeds were divided equally among the three partners. The Youth Violence Prevention Collaborative granted its share of the 2012 proceeds to three organizations: Friends of Youth Opportunity Boston, Diamond Educators Mentoring and InnerCity Weightlifting.

To date, Bostonians for Youth has raised over $1.2 million for the programs of Trinity Boston Foundation and our partners.
My journey to college has not been easy. I have gone through ups and downs throughout my four years of high school and I am grateful to have had the great support of all the members of my TEEP family. The people that I met seven years ago have become my best friends and sisters. The students I have counseled have become strong individuals with great morals and ethics; I am more than proud to say that I have been a part of a community that helped influence them in becoming the people they are today. Most importantly, I appreciate that the same dedication and compassion was planted in me when I was a student at TEEP.

Today, having a college degree is extremely crucial to sustaining a solid career and rewarding life. I have never wanted less than that, so a major goal of mine was to get accepted into a great university. I traveled to Saratoga Springs, New York with Paul Bowen and a few other TEEP members and fell in love with the atmosphere of Skidmore. I worked to my utmost potential throughout my high school career at Boston Latin School and, with the guidance of everyone in TEEP, I received my acceptance letter to Skidmore College. TEEP has taught me that with hard work and perseverance, anything is possible, even through difficult times. Whether it is an acceptance letter from my top choice college or making a difference in a student’s life, anything can be done if I try my hardest. Next school year, I plan to spend my first semester in London with Skidmore College and I am filled with excitement and anticipation.

Morgan Reid-Spaulding, TEEP Senior

Trinity Education for Excellence Program (TEEP)

Although only 30% of TEEP’s 140 students have a parent with a college degree, 100% of our six-year graduates go to college.

TEEP starts with core values we call the five R’s: Respect, Responsibility, Restraint, Reciprocity and Redemption. Middle school students learn how practicing these values builds habits of excellence. High school students become paid counselors for the middle school students and their focus on character and leadership development leads to academic achievement and college success.

TEEP’s mission is to create a safe community where every member is inspired to discover, empowered to achieve excellence, and individually affirmed.

A ROADMAP TO EXCELLENCE
Trinity Public School Partners

Through a major partnership with Roxbury Presbyterian Church Social Impact Center, TPSP is helping to transform the Dearborn School in Roxbury from an underperforming 6-8 middle school to an early college STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) school. TPSP volunteers tutor students and build personal relationships within the school and in citywide coalitions to generate the social power needed for change.

Team Trinity and the Rodman Ride for Kids

Rodman Ride for Kids is an umbrella matching-gift charity raising funds for youth-focused social service agencies that support at-risk kids in Massachusetts. In 2011, Team Trinity had four youth riders from TEEP’s Leadership Development Program and 25 adult volunteer riders who together raised over $30,000 for TEEP.

“i signed up for Trinity Public School Partners because I’d do almost anything to help improve the Boston Public Schools. What I didn’t anticipate was the great adventure I’d have helping 8th grade boys from the Dearborn School prepare for the English MCAS exam. My colleagues and I found very talented and highly motivated students – Nvagamo (“V”), Hassan, Jeremiah and Patrick – who not only “got” the subject matter, but challenged us to push them ahead. Over the six-week period, we came to know and love this terrific group of kids, acquired greater insight into the obstacles they face day to day, and improved our street smarts in the process.”

Beverly Merz, Volunteer

“if I had to pick one event where I feel like I truly challenged myself, it would be the Rodman Ride for Kids. My experience in the Rodman Ride is without a doubt the definition of “if I can do it, you can do it too.” In the last two years, more and more of the TEEP counselors got involved with The Rodman Ride. Maybe it was because of me, maybe it was the influence of the community – I can’t say for sure. All I did was challenge myself and hope to better myself so I can then try to give back to others.”

Standy Merizier, TEEP Senior
My experience from beginning to end of the intake and referral process was that everyone was helpful, very responsive and gave me a great match...the counseling has been VERY valuable to me. It’s great to be able to trust someone. When I started here, I did not have insurance, so it’s been huge, having this scaled fee making it possible. I have referred someone else here, too.

TBCC Client

Counseling has been such a great thing for me. I don’t really have anyone else in my life I can talk to about my problems and I can totally trust my counselor. She helps me see that I have a lot already going for me, like I can do it. Most importantly I feel like she doesn’t judge me.

Fenway High School Student

Working with my clients is a deeply grounding, affirming experience. I am constantly amazed by their tenacity and courage in the face of enormous obstacles, and I often feel as though the connection goes beyond words, to a more sacred place of a spiritual connection where we are united on this journey, making meaning out of harsh reality, and finding ‘islands of competence’ even when the horizon looks bare.

Elise Hoblitzelle, Therapist

Trinity Boston Counseling Center (TBCC)

The Trinity Boston Counseling Center (TBCC) turns ten in 2012. In that time it has worked to improve both individual and community health through its clinic at Trinity Church and its work with partners across the city. Our staff of licensed clinicians and interns from area graduate schools of social work have served over 600 individuals, many of them youth or adults who work with youth.

In 2012, TBCC has taken on the role of Convener for the Partners Advancing Communities Together (PACT) Initiative, a state-funded effort to strengthen neighborhoods and reduce violence. City, state, and community partners are working together to increase access to opportunities and safety for youth who are the most at risk of being victims or perpetrators of gun violence. PACT increases coordination, communication, and prioritization of resources among all partner agencies to ensure seamless delivery of services for PACT clients and their families. TBCC convenes the key partner agencies to ensure a streamlined, collaborative approach. Over the course of 2012, Trinity will build and lead the implementation of a model for collaborative treatment that will strengthen the quality of services provided and lead to more effective outcomes for PACT clients.

Sole Train: Boston Runs Together

Sole Train: Boston Runs Together is a free running and mentoring program for Boston youth. We aim to inspire participants to realize their potential and accomplish goals they never thought possible as they train for and complete a five-mile race (middle school) or half-marathon (high school).

Sole Train builds teams that function as safe, supportive and inclusive communities and increases self-confidence and resilience among participants while teaching healthy habits and instilling hope and optimism.

Participants in Sole Train learn that even seemingly impossible goals can be achieved when they identify necessary steps, attain the appropriate support and develop confidence. Sole Train youth learn to transfer these skills to other areas of their lives and strive to reach their full potential. Our goal is to offer this program to all Boston youth.

Boston Marathon

Thanks to the John Hancock Non-Profit Marathon Program, as well as Mayor Thomas Menino, Trinity Boston Foundation fielded teams for the 2011 and 2012 Boston Marathons. Over the course of two years our runners have raised over $55,000.

2011 Team: Gail Covelluzzi, Pam Hughes, Jess Leffler, Juan David Lozano, Louise Packard, Jason Sevinor, and Richard Webster

2012 Team: Irlando Barbosa, Pam Hughes, Katherine Macdonald, Natalie Mazzetta, Megan Mikolaichik, and Richard Webster

“Sole Train is unlike any program I’ve been in before. It’s a family where everyone is accepted, supported and cared about equally. We help each other and celebrate our accomplishments together. This is my third year at Sole Train and I’m now a Captain. Even though I have a lot going on in my life, I come back to Sole Train because I believe in it and love what it does for me and my teammates and mentors. Sole Train has challenged me and really helped me become a better person. I look forward to leading and encouraging younger Sole Trainers and helping them see how great they are, what they are capable of and what awesome things Sole Train can bring to their lives!”

Nickie, 11th grader, 2012 Sole Train Co-Captain
Trinity Boston Preservation Trust supports the preservation and maintenance of Trinity’s building as a sacred space, an architectural jewel, and a civic and community resource. Work to repoint the west wall of the church and repair the southwest tower was completed in the summer of 2011. The project included the reinstallation of John La Farge’s “Christ Preaching” window.

Music for All offers affordable concerts featuring Trinity choirs and community partners. The 2011 series included a benefit for victims of the earthquake and tsunami in Japan, a celebration of the Christ Preaching window, and the annual Messiah concert.

Community Suppers
New in 2011, the Trinity Boston Foundation served supper on Wednesday evenings that welcomed all – program participants and volunteers, Trinity Church members, neighbors and tourists.

The Steven P. Odom Scholarship Fund was established at Trinity Boston Foundation in 2009. The fund’s purpose is to encourage and support young men and women (ages 12-21) as they work to achieve their educational goals.

I really like Sole Train because it’s fun! I love that I can now run farther and faster than I ever thought I could! I like that it’s helped me really get to know and become better friends with my classmates and teachers. I also love that after I finish a run with Sole Train I feel REALLY proud of myself and feel that I can do anything!
